Canada Market Structure Monthly

MARKET MICROSTRUCTURE OBSERVATIONS

- The average daily volume for TSX listed securities increased in November 2021, by 7% MoM, to 751M shares while down 10% YoY. While liquidity and volatility were reasonably flat MoM there was a noted increase in spreads in the first 30 minutes of trading. This increase in spreads dropped to longer term trend throughout the rest of the day. This seems to indicate a degree of overnight uncertainty risk resulting in increased price discovery occurring in the first 30 minutes.
- For non-TSX listed securities, the average daily volume rose slightly to 572M shares. This represents a 7% increase MoM and an increase of 13% YoY. Liquidity, spread and volatility conditions were flat MoM, with a slight increase noted in the 30 minutes of trading. This echoes the comments above relating to overnight uncertainty risk.
- Block volume in TSX-listed securities continued its upward trend and remained above the 10% of consolidated volume level. These gains were focused primarily on the TSX.
